Flu outbreak hammers NY

► Governor Cuomo declares public health emergency ► Executive order allows pharmacists to give flu shots to more people ► Some pharmacies are running out of the vaccine ► City officials warn people to prepare for a 'high' flu activity

New Yorkers scrambled to get flu shots this weekend after Governor Andrew Cuomo declared a public health emergency to combat the rising number of influenza cases in the state.

Gov. Cuomo declared the state of emergency on Saturday, allowing pharmacists permission to administer flu vaccinations to stem the worst flu outbreak in the state in years.

"We are experiencing the worst flu season since at least 2009, and influenza activity in New York state is widespread, with cases reported in all 57 counties and all five boroughs of New York City," Cuomo said.

Some pharmacies even ran out of flu vaccines, frustrating stressed New Yorkers who lined up for them around the five boroughs.

Ten people have died so far this year of flu-related illnesses, according to the city's Health Department.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention released data last week reporting that New York City specifically has experienced higher than average flu activity.

The Health Department has classified January flu activity as "high." They reported 40 outbreaks and more than 400 people sick. Twenty outbreaks were at long-term care facilities, as were the deaths, a Department spokesman woman said.

Health Department data shows flu-related emergency room visits spiking in late December and remaining high until Jan. 5, the most recent data available.

Last week, Health Commissioner Thomas Farley urged New Yorkers who hadn't already to get their shots.

"Influenza activity in

New York City is increasing, and we encourage any New Yorkers who have not received their flu vaccination to do so immediately," he said.

"This season is becoming one of the worst in the decade," spokesman Calvin Peters said about the city.

Running out of vaccines

A pharmacist at a Duane Reade on 34th and Third said Friday they were still stocked with flu shots, but added, "I can't say for how long."

Shanay Barrow, a pharmacy technician at the CVS on 34th between Second and Third avenues, said they ran out of vaccines Thursday and were not expecting a shipment for days.

"It's been overwhelming," she said of customers coming in "one after another." "Everyone's freaking out."

Last year, she added, they may have given out four or five shots a day. "These days, it's like 40-some each day."

Call

SURGERY

According to the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons (AAOS), there are about 270,000 knee replacement operations performed each year in the United States. This image depicts the procedure.

Want to avoid knee surgery?

Our program could be the solution you are looking for.

Do your knees hurt when going up or down the stairs?

Do you frequently take medication for knee pain?

Have you tried physical therapy?

Do the activities you enjoy cause pain in your knees?

Have you had cortisone or other injections to the knee that have not worked?

Do your knees make you feel older than you really are?

Are you afraid that your knee pain is only going to get worse?

If you answered YES to any of these questions, keep reading...

Why do knee injections often fail? What's different about our procedure?

Most doctors today do one of three things:

- 1) They perform "blind injections" (an injection done without imaging guidance).
- 2) They use antiquated equipment from as far back as 2001, even in some of the largest hospitals in New York.
- 3) They use Cortisone, which can have side effects.

Precision is the difference.

FACT: 30-40% of blind injections result in needle misplacement.

^[1]With this much inaccuracy, it's no wonder most people never find relief.

Our solution... Our office uses Hyalgan®

What exactly is injected into the knee?

Hyaluronic acid (Hyalgan®) is a natural substance extracted from rooster combs and purified to mimic the lubricating substances that occur naturally in the joint, called synovial fluid. In patients with osteoarthritis, synovial fluid "dries up", allowing the cartilage of the joint to rub against itself and other surfaces. This causes pain, inflammation, and usually damage to the joint. Think of this treatment like oiling a rigid, squeaky door hinge.

When will I feel results?

Most feel an immediate reduction in pain and can return to normal activities in weeks.

Will my insurance cover this treatment?

Yes, most insurances will cover this treatment*. We work with Medicare: GHI PPO

Affordable payment plans available to fit all budgets. Call our office for free insurance benefits verification.

Aaron Swartz, 26, an Internet activist who created an early version of the Web feed system RSS and news sharing system Reddit, was found dead in his Brooklyn apartment on Friday, according to a spokeswoman for the city's chief medical examiner, which ruled the death a suicide by hanging.

Swartz faced trouble in July 2011, when he was indicted by a federal grand jury of wire fraud, computer fraud and other charges related to allegedly stealing millions of academic articles and journals from a digital archive at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

According to the federal indictment, Swartz used MIT's computer networks to steal more than 4 million articles from JSTOR, an online archive and journal distribution service.

Over the years, Swartz became an online icon for helping to make a mountain of information freely available to the public, including an estimated 19 million pages of federal court documents from the PACER case-law system.

Markets hopeful DC has learned its debt ceiling lesson

CHIP SOMODEVILLA/GETTY IMAGES

► Investors to Congress: Don't drop the ball this time.

There's an index for that

Meanwhile, the CBOE Volatility Index, Wall Street's preferred anxiety gauge that is known as the VIX, ended Friday just a few hundredths of a point from its lowest closing level since 2007.

Quoted

"We played this game of chicken before, and we all know how that played out and we don't want to repeat that. The market knows this. Investors know it's not going to be like 2011."

JACK DE GAN, CHIEF INVESTMENT OFFICER, HARBOR ADVISORY

The U.S. government is expected to bump up against its legal borrowing limit by March, and it would be hard to fault investors for feeling edgy.

The last fight over the debt ceiling led to one of the most volatile weeks in stock market history, costing the United States its top credit rating and pushing the government to the brink of default.

But this time around, markets are calm, with the benchmark S&P 500 barely budging on Friday after notching a five-year closing high on Thursday. Some investors seem to be betting that Congress learned its lesson from the bruising debt ceiling fight of 2011 and will choose compromise over market meltdown.

Lawmakers remain far apart in their views. Republicans want the White House to agree to deep spending cuts in exchange for raising the $16.4 trillion borrowing limit. However, some conservatives are warning against playing hardball with the debt ceiling.

States flirt with big tax changes

Hopes for overhauling the federal tax system are fading in Washington, but in some state capitals, tax reform experiments — some far-reaching — are fast taking shape. REUTERS

► Across the U.S. South and Midwest, Republicans have consolidated control of state legislatures and governorships, giving them the power to test long-debated tax ideas.

► Louisiana Republican Gov. Bobby Jindal called for ending the state's income tax and corporate taxes, with sales taxes instead.

► A similar plan is being pushed by Republicans in North Carolina. Kansas, which cut its income tax significantly last year, may trim further. Oklahoma, which tried to cut income taxes last year, is expected to try again.

► Cutting income taxes and shifting the overall burden to consumption via higher sales taxes is a long-standing goal of some tax theorists.

Treasury, Fed kill idea of $1 trillion platinum coins

WASHINGTON. The U.S. Treasury Department said it will not produce platinum coins as a way of generating $1 trillion in revenue and avoiding a battle in Congress over raising the U.S. debt ceiling.

The idea of creating $1 trillion by minting

The Treasury Department and the Federal Reserve, both independent of one another, each concluded this was not a viable option.

France bombs Islamist stronghold in north Mali

French fighter jets pounded an Islamist rebel stronghold deep in northern Mali yesterday as Paris poured more troops into the capital Bamako, awaiting a West African force to dislodge al Qaeda-linked insurgents from the country's north.

The attack on Gao, the largest city in the desert region controlled by the Islamist alliance, marked a decisive intensification on the third day of French air raids, striking at the heart of the vast territory seized by rebels in April.

France is determined to end Islamist domination of north Mali, which many fear could act as a base for attacks on the West and for links with al Qaeda in Yemen, Somalia and North Africa.

What measures the best teacher? More than scores, study shows

Effective teachers can be identified by observing them at work, measuring their students' progress on standardized tests and asking students directly what goes on in the classroom, according to a comprehensive study released last week.

The three-year, $50 million Measures of Effective Teaching study, funded by the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, found it was hard to predict how much

"This should be a very big red flag to all those policymakers who think they can have test-based accountability be half or more of a teacher's evaluation."

RANDI WEINGARTEN,
PRESIDENT OF THE AMERICAN FEDERATION OF TEACHERS

students would achieve in a school year based on their teacher's years of experience or knowledge of pedagogical technique.

But researchers found they could pick out the best teachers in a school and even predict roughly how much their students would learn by using a formula that equally weighed student input, test scores and detailed classroom observations.

Taken alone, each of those measures was fairly volatile. Judging teachers by student performance on state tests, for instance, turned out to be unreliable and inconsistent. Judging teachers by a principal's observations also didn't identify who could be counted on to boost student proficiency on state math and reading tests.

Combining all three measures into a properly weighted index, however, produced a result "teachers can trust," says Vicki Phillips, a director in the education program at the Gates Foundation.

The study comes at a time of bitter political wrangling over teacher evaluations in cities like New York, Los Angeles and Chicago — and provides ammunition for all sides.

► Standardized tests don't tell the whole story, according to the Gates study.

Scores across the states

The Obama administration has pushed states to give heavy weight to quantitative measures such as test scores in designing teacher evaluations. More than a dozen states have moved in that direction — in some cases making it impossible for a teacher to earn a good review if his or her test scores are low, no matter how well the teacher performs on other measures. States including Florida, Louisiana, Colorado, Michigan and Ohio have been particularly aggressive in tying teacher ratings to test scores.

Education reformers who have been pressing to dismantle tenure systems protecting veteran teachers from layoffs could take heart in the finding that seniority doesn't predict classroom success.

Yet the report also bolstered union leaders who argue that teacher evaluations shouldn't be tied so heavily to value-added measures — complex algorithms that gauge whether students do better or worse on state tests after several months in a given teacher's classroom.

Looking at the business of higher education

Texas A&M professor Vicente Lechuga is a leading researcher of for-profit higher education in the U.S. In 2005, he conducted one of the first in-depth studies of these schools, interviewing more than 50 professors at for-profit institutions across the country. The study, "The Changing Landscape of the Academic Profession," was re-released by Routledge in December.

What did you find when you interviewed faculty at for-profit schools?

Their background was not typically in higher education. They usually came from the workforce, so the more hierarchical, for-profit model was something they were more comfortable with. I found a lot more top-down control at these schools. That's different in traditional institutions, where faculty have a lot of autonomy to determine how and what they teach.

Were their goals different?

A common motivator I found was a desire to provide students with real-world knowledge, not just the theoretical aspects of what they were teaching.

What do for-profit schools tend to do well?

They're very innovative in the way they deliver education. They were the first to offer online courses. When they first started doing that, many in traditional higher education sort of looked down on that idea.

But now you'd be hard-pressed to find a traditional school without online courses.

What do they tend to do poorly?

There are major issues with for-profit graduation rates. There are, of course, many different types of these institutions. It's a broad spectrum, but overall it's problematic. Also, the loan default rates are much higher than at traditional institutions.

Bruce Walsh

Do the research

Before signing up for any program, do thorough research about job placement rates. "Often, for-profits have been able to skirt the issue of reporting their numbers," says Lechuga. "Although, that situation has gotten better over the last 10 years."

Brace yourself for a Britstorm

Britney Spears is really on a makeover mission for the new year. After quitting "The X Factor" last week, she decided to further shake up her 2013 by ending things with fiancé Jason Trawick over the weekend.

"Jason and I have decided to call off our engagement. I'll always adore him and we will remain great friends," Spears said in a statement that we assume was heavily edited.

Unfortunately, there's no head-shaving and car-smashing to speak of this time around. Sources tell TMZ that the reasons for the split are pretty normal by celebrity standards: Trawick was a little uneasy being an usher at the Britney Circus; the couple couldn't decide on having children; Britney Spears is Britney-effing-Spears.

So where do you go when you quit your job and your fiancé in the same week? Vegas, baby. Brit's reportedly close to a deal with Caesar properties for a long-term gig. According to TMZ, the paycheck will be "astronomical," topping Celine Dion's $100 million-per-year deal at Caesars.

How much do we want to jump in a red convertible with Britney and drive across the desert right now?

So much.

Gaga vs. the Osbournes

Lady Gaga has picked herself quite the fight. In an open letter to Kelly Osbourne — who is a commenter on E! network's catty "Fashion Police" — Gaga whipped out the B-word, calling Osbourne a bully on her blog.

"To see you blossoming into a beautiful slender woman who makes fun of others for a living is astounding. Why not help others?" wondered Gaga in one of the more annoying pieces of prose on the Web.

Now Sharon Osbourne has come to her daughter's defense. "You say [Kelly's] work on E! with the Fashion Police is 'rooted in criticism, judgment, and rating people's beauty against one another.' Welcome to the real world," the 60-year-old firecracker snapped on her Facebook page. "Example, when I saw you wear a dress made out of raw meat, I was sickened."

Listen, Gaga: Don't engage in an Internet fight with someone who has made a living being the craziest, scariest Osbourne. This woman's a survivor, and she totally wants your little dog, too.

You look pretty today, Sharon.

Count him as a reference

In a piece titled "Here Is What Happens When You Cast Lindsay Lohan in Your Movie," The New York Times called out Lindsay Lohan for being difficult on the set of "The Canyons." Now, Grant Bowler, her costar in "Liz &

Dick," is coming to her defense — kind of. "I never got yelled at," he tells E! Online. "To be completely fair to Lindsay, that did not happen. She didn't threaten me at all."

When you're Lindsay Lohan, "she didn't threaten me at all" is the equivalent of a solid LinkedIn recommendation.

Talking points

Wilde, Sudeikis making it official

Olivia Wilde and "Saturday Night Live" star Jason Sudeikis are officially engaged, a rep confirms to People magazine. "They are so excited," a source tells the magazine. "And very, very happy." Rumors of engagement plans last month were apparently just a bit premature, as Sudeikis reportedly popped the question shortly after the holidays. The pair began dating in November 2011, and Wilde has made no effort to hide her affections for Sudeikis, telling USA Today that she fell "blissfully, hopelessly, wildly in love" with him. "We hold

Bryants work things out

L.A. Lakers star Kobe

Bryant and his wife Vanessa are not splitting up after all. "We are pleased to announce that we have reconciled. Our divorce action will be dismissed. We are looking forward to our future together," Vanessa announced via her Instagram account. Kobe took to his official Facebook page to go into a bit more detail, writing, "I am happy to say that Vanessa and I are moving on with our lives together as a family. When the show ends and the music stops, the journey is made beautiful by having that someone to share it with."

Get ready to 'aw!' about Bradley Cooper

Bradley Cooper didn't have to worry too much about who to take to the Oscars now that he's up for Best Actor for his work in "Silver Linings Playbook." That decision was made a long time ago. "One night, when I started the profession, [my mom said], 'If you ever [get nominated], I am the date,'" he tells E! News, adding that he has already informed mom Gloria that she needs to find a nice dress for the Feb. 24 event. "She was freaking out," he says.

GOLDEN GLOBE AWARDS

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

All of Hollywood was focused on the 70th annual Golden Globe Awards last night as awards season kicked into high gear with the Hollywood Foreign Press' yearly party at the Beverly Hilton. While the TV industry enjoyed the limelight as well, the real question is how the night's movie winners will impact the ongoing Oscar race.

This year's new co-hosts, Tina Fey and Amy Poehler, drew early raves for their work, with a lively opening segment that poked just enough fun at the attendees to make it memorable. "Only at the Golden Globes do the beautiful people of film rub shoulders with the rat-faced people of television," joked Poehler, who was up against Fey for Best Actress in a Television Comedy.

"I hope I win," Poehler told Fey.

The ladies also took a moment to poke fun at Ricky Gervais, who hosted the three previous years and drew increasing criticism each time for jokes that some felt crossed the line into meanness.

"Ricky Gervais could not be here tonight because he's no longer in show business," Fey joked. Fey and Poehler also noted they'd been warned the punishment for going too far was being asked back to host the next year.

The first award of the night went to Christoph Waltz, who received the Best Supporting Actor globe for his work in "Django Unchained," beating out co-star Leonardo DiCaprio as well as "Lincoln" scene-stealer Tommy Lee Jones, who is considered the Oscar frontrunner in the category.

The hostesses didn't hold back

"When it comes to torture, I trust the lady who spent three years married to James Cameron."

POEHLER WONDERS WHY KATHRYN BIGELOW'S FILMS ALL SEEM TO INVOLVE TORTURE

"His first two films were filmed in Boston, but he wanted to film somewhere that was friendlier to outsiders so he moved this one to Iran."

FHEY RIBS BEN AFFLECK FOR "ARGO"

"I haven't seen someone so totally alone and abandoned since you were onstage with James Franco at the Oscars."

FHEY PAYS ANNE HATHAWAY A BACKHAND COMPLIMENT FOR HER "LES MISERABLES" ROLE

Composer Mychael Danna picked up the Best Score award for "Life of Pi," while Adele received her first Golden Globe for Best Song for "Skyfall." "Oh my God! Honestly, I've come out for a night as a new mom," Adele said in an endearing acceptance speech. "I was literally not expecting this."

On the TV side of things, early awards mirrored last September's Emmy awards. Maggie Smith won for Best Supporting Actress for "Downton Abbey," and "Homeland" star Damien Lewis earned the trophy for Best Actor in a TV Drama. "Homeland" also won for Best TV Drama. HBO's "Game Change," about Sarah Palin's introduction into the 2008 presidential race, won big, taking home Best TV Movie and Best Actress in a TV Movie for Julianne Moore's depiction of Palin.

- 3. Kerry Washington, wearing Miu Miu, dazzled in one of the night's big trends: blush pink.
- 4. Jessica Chastain's hair inspiration? We're guessing Scarlett O'Hara. As for her "seafoam" gown, that'd be the work of Calvin Klein.

THE NEW CARRIE

► AnnaSophia Robb stars as a teenage Carrie Bradshaw, before she had sex or ruled the city
► She opens up her makeup bag

In "The Carrie Diaries," the television prequel to "Sex and the City," AnnaSophia Robb stars as a 16-year-old, pre-Manolo, pre-Big Carrie Bradshaw. But unlike the fashion-obsessed icon she plays on screen, Robb has a low-maintenance approach to makeup and clothes. We discuss.

Putting the makeup on ... and taking it off

"I don't really wear makeup anymore. ... I kind of stopped because when I'm working I have it on for up to 15 hours a day. So on the weekends or before work, I only put on moisturizer."

Makeup from the '80s — yay or nay?

"Eighties makeup was just a bunch of colors and crazy neon. I don't know if ► "The Carrie Diaries" premieres tonight at 8 on The CW.

I love it. The blush was really strong and bright and if you didn't have the skin tone to pull it off, it was way too heavy. But, if you put a piece of paper on your cheek to create that hard, drastic line, that look can be fun."

Her beauty mantra

"Look after your eyebrows! I was given an eyebrow brush on a job that I still use to this day. My friends make fun of me, but I love it. When I was younger, my mother taught me how to apply blush. Get it wrong and there'll be way too much color and you'll just look 'warm.' Using bronzer is best."

The secret to nailingCarrie's hair: a wig

"I naturally have straight hair, which takes about two hours to curl, so it's faster for me to wear a wig. Carrie wears a lot of updos on the show, so we've been able to use a lot of fun accessories: banana clips and pins."

If she could raid one 'SATC' closet she'd choose ...

"Carrie's — I loved the skirts. She has a wild sense of style."

NBC launches its own answer to ABC's 'Revenge'

► 'Deception' creator Liz Heldens sees her new prime-time drama as the love child of 'Sabrina' and 'Donnie Brasco'

Murder, wealth, scandal, double-crossing and double identities. It's the stuff that has made "Revenge" a guilty-pleasure hit for ABC, so no one could blame NBC for wanting a piece of the action. But writer and executive producer Liz Heldens insists there was no directive to make a "Revenge" for NBC when she created "Deception," the network's new murder-mystery nighttime soap.

"No one said that," Heldens says. In fact, the show's twisty tale — of Joanna, an undercover cop (Meagan Good), returning to the wealthy estate where she spent her childhood to investigate the murder of a socialite — gets its inspiration from a finer pedigree. "I was sort of thinking about how could you do an undercover show with a female protagonist, and at the same time NBC was looking for a soap," Heldens explains. "And so then I sort of thought could 'Donnie Brasco' and the movie 'Sabrina' have a baby? And so they did."

The material was juicy enough to attract Victor Garber back to television. The veteran stage actor, currently receiving raves on the big screen in "Argo," is always up for playing characters with a secret, as he proved in his run on "Alias" for five seasons.

"You know, to me, acting was always about revealing what's going on beneath, and there's always a subtext in every scene," Garber says. "You say something but you mean something else."

Of course, kicking off a new show circling a central mystery — here the murder of socialite Vivian Bowers — doesn't come without its potential pitfalls. But Heldens knows where this story is going. "The plan that we've always had in our heads is to reveal to the audience who the killer is, and Joanna will probably have a pretty good idea [by the end of the first season]," she says. "And the second season is about proving it."

Gosling goes gangster

Ryan Gosling's character in "Gangster Squad" is a smooth-talking charmer who's quick with a joke. So, it's not really much of a stretch for the actor. In fact, it's tough to get a straight answer out of him. When asked what was challenging about taking on real-life 1940s cop Jerry Wooters, Gosling offers, "It was challenging for me when I realized that I was not going to get a Tommy gun."

And what about the high-pitched voice he used for Wooters? Did that come from his research into the man himself? Not exactly. "That was more of a wardrobe issue," Gosling offers. And speaking of his wardrobe: "The wool was quite itchy, so I had a rash," he says. "I channeled that irritation into my hatred for the gangsters."

It might not be surprising to learn, then, that one of Gosling's main sources of inspiration for his performance was one of the era's most entertaining characters. "I always kind of admired how Bugs Bunny was not above dressing like a lady in order to get out of trouble," he says. "I thought that could be interesting in this in some way, this person trying to make [himself]

Keeping tabs on Emma Stone

"Gangster Squad" marks the second time Ryan Gosling has shown off his onscreen chemistry with Emma Stone — they first romanced each other in 2011's "Crazy Stupid Love." The actor admits his patter with Stone works better for comedy than drama, which made their latest film something of a challenge. "I think it was hard for us to be serious. We had made this comedy together, so we were a couple of knuckleheads," he says. "We thought, 'This will be fun to work together again.' Then we had to try and be serious. I was trying to pretend like I was Humphrey Bogart or something. That kind of made it difficult."

inconspicuous. But I also was trying to relate to the idea that this is a real person. I think it's important to note that the man himself was a much braver, more admirable character than the version of him that I play in the film."

The question: I got into an argument via text messaging with a close friend. When it was over, I felt exhausted and unsettled. Advice?

As someone who is all thumbs with my thumbs, I'm always amazed that people have the digital dexterity to carry on a reasonably coherent text dialogue for longer than two minutes. But personal challenges aside, texting is not the way to negotiate a relationship.

As texting becomes second nature, it's worth noting that human beings were designed to connect with each other on many different levels. UCLA pro-person's distress.

3 To have control over the conversation, including setting boundaries with difficult or verbose people. Sometimes this can devolve into manipulation, especially if one party refuses to talk on the phone.

4 To expend less energy. Texting requires fewer sentences than talking or sending e-mails.

I am not anti-texting. Like any technology, texting has its place — especially for a quick hello, simple banter or making plans. But your phone also has a numbers keypad. Next time you find yourself engaged in heated text warfare, I suggest you use it. Even better, discuss the problem face to face.

Why tobacco plants might be the panacea for the flu

- ▶ A tobacco relative may lead us to a new vaccine, expert says
- ▶ And no need to worry about a flu shot with a side of nicotine

As the supply of vaccines continues to drop in wake of the newest flu epidemic, one company is turning to a peculiar source to combat the virus: tobacco plants.

Medicago, which develops vaccines for a variety of infectious diseases worldwide, is using tobacco plants to fight the flu thanks to their genetic properties and low maintenance costs. Though the scientists are not able to create a vaccine for the current strain, they will have Phase II results of their experiment by this summer. From there, the time line to completion is common to any vaccine approval process — about four or five years.

We asked Mike Wanner, the executive vice president of operations at Medicago, to tell us more about his company's efforts to fight the flu.

How did you discover that tobacco plants could be used to create flu vaccines?

Plants are one of the world's most cost-effective protein producers and can make virtually any type of protein. Medicago's process for manufacturing the virus-like protein has been developed and optimized for use with a relative of the tobacco plant. The leaves of these plants are well-suited to rapidly incorporate the genetic information required to produce proteins that appear to the human immune system as a live virus but are really virus-like particles.

Do patients who receive a tobacco-made vaccine get any tobacco byproducts in their bodies as a result?

▶ No. Our vaccine facility includes a state-of-the-art extraction and purification unit and effectively removes plant cell materials. Therefore, the purity level of our product is extremely high.

Is it now too late to get a flu shot?

▶ No, everyone who has not yet gotten vaccinated should do so as soon as possible. The vaccine is known to become effective within about two weeks of vaccination.

What causes a flu epidemic to go away?

▶ In the general population, as the epidemic proceeds the number of people who are susceptible to a specific flu strain ultimately decreases — and so the rate at which new infections arise also decreases. Eventually, the rate at which individuals are recovering exceeds the rate at which new infections are occurring. When this rate drops to zero, the epidemic is over.

Use your voice to land an interview

► You're not a boring office robot, so why should your cover letter be? ► Simple ways to make your application stand out

Pretend you're on Twitter

If your cover letter was a tweet, what would it say? Get right to the point without saying: "I'm applying for the ABC position at EFG Corporation that was posted on Simply Hired."

Writing this sentence on Twitter would be a total waste of characters. Instead, your cover letter should start with your pitch: "I'd be a great fit for the ABC position because XYZ."

Stop saying that you have "strong analytical skills" and instead analyze the job description and craft some very concise and specific statements demonstrating why you'd be perfect for the gig.

Lose your laundry lists

Why does your résumé include laundry lists of each daily task you performed for all the jobs you've ever had? If you were a part-time receptionist, anyone who looks at your résumé

► Your cover letter should tell employers more than your daily tasks. Let them know what makes you the ideal candidate.

Ditch the cover letter robot vibe

Write a cover letter the way you would write a blog post — with a human voice. Read your cover letter aloud. Now read a post on your favorite blog aloud. Notice a difference? Your cover letter is written in a robotic voice that you may think sounds professional. It's not.

Remove words like "strong communication skills" and "good phone etiquette" from your application and write a persuasive cover letter that has some action in it. Walk the walk.

will know that you answered the phone. What made you good at this job? How did you stand out?

Candidates should always pitch themselves as achievers as opposed to doers. Make accomplishments the focal point of your resume and cover letter — and cut out the rest.

Stop the résumé firing squad

We all know the drill: Modify a few résumé buzzwords, change the company name and job title on your cover letter and fire off multiple applications into cyberspace.

Instead, opt for a quality-over-quantity approach by applying to a few positions very well. Standing out requires more time than you may be spending right now.

Ford hiring 2,200 US staff members as vehicle lineup expands

Ford Motor Co. plans to fill 2,200 white-collar positions this year in product development and other units based in the United States as the automaker expands and updates its vehicle lineup worldwide.

About 75 percent of the jobs will be in engineering, manufacturing and information technology, Ford said in a statement on Friday, describing this as its largest increase in new salaried positions in more than a decade.

► More fuel-efficient vehicles means more jobs at Ford.

"As we expand our product lineup of fuel-efficient vehicles, we need more people in critical areas," said Joe Hinrichs, head of Ford's North and South American operations.

The 2,200 new salaried workers expected this year are in addition to more than 8,100 hourly and salaried workers Ford hired in the U.S. last year. About 1,000 were hourly jobs recently brought in-house that were once performed in other locations or by Ford suppliers in Mexico and Japan.

In 2011, Ford and the United Auto Workers union struck a deal that would require the automaker to create or retain 12,000 U.S. hourly jobs by 2015. On Friday, Ford said it had fulfilled half of that commitment.

3 Job opportunities to watch in 2013

NEW IN THE NEW YEAR

Some industries, such as health care, will always be booming. Other paths are not as obviously fruitful. "Predicting job growth is like predicting where tornadoes will form," says Rich Milgram, CEO of the job-posting website Beyond.com. "You can have all the charts and data in the world, but it's not an exact science."

Milgram says it's all about "looking for trends that can help inform how the job market will fare long-term." We got some help from industry insiders.

The industry: Real estate

► Even in difficult economies, real estate agents have control over their earnings.

"Even after five years of a challenging real estate market, employees of real estate companies are extremely happy with their jobs," says Doug Claffey, CEO of Workplace Dynamics. "The entrepreneurial nature of the industry gives employees a great deal of control over their own destinies and success."

The industry: Retail

Talent acquisition company iCIMS pores over data to learn who's receiving the most applications and doing the most hiring.

"At the end of 2012, iCIMS evaluated the data and noted which industries were experiencing an increase in applicant submissions for open positions," says CEO Colin Day.

"Retail, transportation and health care all received the largest number of open position applications, with retail ahead in the volume of submissions."

The industry: Biosciences

While 2013 might not be a big year for biosciences and pharmaceuticals it's an area worth watching. "We don't think there's much room for growth with the large pharmaceutical companies," says Chuck Pappalardo, managing director of Trilogy Search. "This sector is too important for us not to keep a close eye on it, but the coming year — and possibly even the next five years — won't be its finest hour."

News in brief

AmEx cuts jobs as digital age transforms travel

American Express will eliminate 5,400 jobs this year, mostly in travel services, as consumers rely more on websites for bookings.

"Travel has gone through a great deal of change," Chief Executive Officer Kenneth I. Chenault said in a conference call with analysts. The economics of corporate travel has "changed more dramatically over the years than any part of the business."

American Express, the biggest U.S. credit card issuer by purchases, provides clients worldwide with travel-booking services. Competitors include Priceline.com, the most valuable online-travel agency, and Expedia.

The job cuts account for about 8.5 percent of AmEx's 63,500-person workforce, a number that will be mitigated as the company refills some jobs, according to a statement. The total number of employees by year-end will drop by 4 percent and American Express expects to hold increases in annual operating expenses to less than 3 percent, the firm said. BLOOMBERG

After asking at the post office to see the choices in "Forever" stamps, I bought the "Go Green" set. Each stamp has a piece of advice: Choose to walk, tide a bike, use public transportation, share rides, maintain tire pressure, insulate the home, adjust the thermostat, use efficient light bulbs, fix water leaks, turn off lights not in use, let nature do the work (with a picture of a clothesline), compost, plant trees, buy local produce, reduce bags and recycle more.

Well said. Too bad the post office can't add: "Lobby Congress to pass a fair but tough carbon tax."

PAUL EMILE ANDERS,

The tax man cometh — but only to the successful

Someone, please help me understand what happened to our country. We have more than 23 million people out of work.

We have 45 million people on food stamps (EBT cards). We have 47 million people who contribute zero tax dollars to the federal government. We are $16 trillion in debt and climbing.

President Obama will not cut spending. The best solution to this nightmare is to raise the taxes on the wealthy — that will solve everything.

Tax the only group of people that are successful.

When you take away people's spirit to work hard and succeed, you quickly become a nation in decline. President Obama's plan is working.

JOHN MCLAUGHLIN,
VIA E-MAIL

You don't need guns as long as your security detail is armed and ready

I'm surprised no one has mentioned the hypocrisy of the celebrity "gun control" advocates.

The same celebrities who advocate gun bans benefit from armed security surrounding them and protecting their mansions.

Celebrity children also benefit from armed guards in schools while they criticize the NRA for wanting the same thing. And no gun control rally is complete without armed police protection.

NEW YORK RANGERS — 2013 TEAM PREVIEW

- Nash addition gives further potency to offensive attack
- Cup favorites know they still have much left to prove

BRUCE BENNETT/GETTY IMAGES

Unfinished business

The Rangers may enter the season as prohibitive Stanley Cup favorites, but at yesterday's first day of training camp they were busy getting acquainted with a set of "new guys." "New kids, new kid in the corner," a grinning Derek Stepan said as he nodded across the dressing room toward the stalls of Jeff Halpern, Rick Nash and Taylor Pyatt. "It's good. All three of them, they fit in pretty well."

Following a season in which the Rangers reached the Eastern Conference finals for the first time since 1996-97, general manager Glen Sather bolstered the team by acquiring Nash from Columbus in a blockbuster trade, while signing Halpern, Pyatt and Arron Asham as free agents.

"They're going to add a lot to this team in a lot of key areas. The organization did a great job in filling [holes]," Stepan said. "The big kid on the block [Nash], he brings so much to the table."

Even though the trio of Asham, Halpern and Pyatt will play vital roles, Nash

Quoted

"He's a hell of a player. We're very happy he's with the [Rangers] organization."

JOHN TORTORELLA, HEAD COACH ON RICK NASH

was the centerpiece.

Nash wowed his teammates and onlookers at the first day of camp, most notably when he beat Henrik Lundqvist in a one-on-one drill with a wrist shot over the reigning Vezina Trophy winner's glove.

"I know how good of a player he can be so we're really excited just to have him in our lineup and add a little something extra," Dan Girardi said. "I'd rather play against him in a scrimmage any day than in a game."

Breaking down
the Blueshirts

The word most closely associated with the Rangers prior to the 2011-12 season was potential. Now, that word is power.

The Rangers took a major step forward last season by compiling an Eastern Conference-best 51-24-7 mark before being eliminated by rival New Jersey in six games of the Eastern Conference final.

It is not quite Cup or bust on Broadway, but there is no doubt the Rangers have their sights set on winning the franchise's fifth Cup.

► Goaltending

Henrik Lundqvist and Martin Biron are among the league's premier goaltending tandems. Lundqvist's remarkable 2011-12 campaign (39-18-5, 1.97 GAA, .930 save percentage) earned him the Vezina Trophy.

► Defense

It's among the best units in the NHL. The top pairing of future Norris Trophy-winner Ryan McDonagh and all-star Dan Girardi is set. The duo earned John Tortorella's trust after he put them together early last season. The Marc Staal-Michael Del Zotto second unit provides strong own-zone play with the ability to contribute offensively.

► Offense

The summer acquisition of Rick Nash should give the Rangers as good a collection of Top 6 forwards as any in the NHL. The possibility exists that Nash-Brad Richards-Marian Gaborik would make up the top line. Richards is among the preeminent setup centers in the league. ● METRO/DG

Falcons win epic showdown, Pats hold on late

The championship games are set, as the Patriots and Falcons came out on top yesterday in a romp and a heartbreaker, respectively.

► Atlanta 30, Seattle 28
Matt Ryan got his first career playoff win, but it was far from easy.

The Seahawks trailed 20-0 at the half, but rallied for what looked like an epic victory.

Russell Wilson marched 61 yards in seven plays and Marshawn Lynch took it in from two yards out to give the Seahawks a 28-27 lead with 31 seconds left. But that was all Ryan needed.

Ryan threw a 22-yard pass to Harry Douglas and a 19-yard pass to Tony Gonzalez to set up the game-winning 49-yard field goal from Matt Bryant with eight seconds left.

► Tony Gonzalez won his first playoff game after 16 years in the league. They face the Niners next week.

The Seahawks got one last chance, but their Hail Mary was intercepted in the end zone.

They will face San Francisco next week in the NFC Championship game.

► New England 41, Houston 28

The Patriots didn't have quite as easy a time with the Texans as they did in the regular season, but they put together 21 unanswered points in the second half and held on for the win.

Tom Brady threw for 344 yards, three touchdowns and zero interceptions in the win. Houston scored two touchdowns in the fourth quarter, but it wasn't enough. New England will host Baltimore next week.

● MARK OSBORNE

Knicks getting an unexpected spark courtesy of rookie

► Chris Copeland emerges from nowhere into starting lineup ► Starts, scores 22 vs. Hornets

The Knicks entered Sunday's matinee against the Hornets on a rare three-game skid, and in need of some offensive infusion. They got it from an unlikely source — 28-year-old rookie Chris Copeland.

The Orange, N.J. native made just his fourth career start and took advantage of his minutes in helping the Knicks hold off a feisty Hornets team, 100-87. Copeland, who was the last man to make the Knicks' roster following a competitive training camp, tallied 22 points.

"It's huge [the win], but we were very confident coming into this game that we were going to get this win," said Copeland. "We were locked in early."

New York (24-12) ended their longest losing streak under Mike Woodson by turning to Copeland almost out of necessity. Both Marcus Camby and Rasheed Wallace are battling foot injuries and are out indefinitely, the scoring load is being placed almost entirely on Carmelo Anthony and Amar'e Stoudemire is still working his way back.

► Copeland spent four years at Colorado, but never averaged more than 12.1 points per game in a season.

21.8 Copeland averaged 21.8 points per game last season for Aalstar — a team in the Belgian League.

"My teammates, they were out there looking out for me on the floor and telling me to be aggressive," Copeland said. "And it all paid off. It was a great win."

Woodson was certainly impressed with his rookie, which is a big accomplishment considering the coach rarely trusts younger players.

"I thought Cope was great," said Woodson. "You give him an opportunity to start again and he stepped up and made plays offensively. He was just great."

SNORING?

As recommended by Dr. Gifford-Jones M. D.

Here is proof that snoring can be corrupting your health and your marriage. Three out of 10 couples are considering divorce because of snoring says a major magazine article. You are not alone! An official survey says 48% of all people snore. 75% are affected, if you add non-snoring husbands that have snoring wives or vice versa. Snoring is caused by slack muscles in the throat. A common complaint is that people feel that they are not well rested in the morning. Many people wrote they are now sleeping like a babies. Their partners are delighted. This natural health product Sound Sleep #23 usually helps the first night. No side effects.

■ College professor had lack of good sleeps with many interruptions for last 8 years that made her tired during the day. Within 3 days taking Bell Sound Sleep #23 the terrible snoring stopped. I wake up feeling refreshed and energized. I can concentrate in a focused, happy manner. I feel delighted with this natural product. Dr. Anele E. Heiges, 77, New York, NY ■ A life changing product. The very first night I took the capsules and every night after I had a restful and wonderful sleep. It has been a God send and blessing. I am by nature a skeptic. The money-back guarantee convinced me to try it. Jimmy Pay, 53, Gardendale, AC ■ 3 Years on Bell Sound Sleep #23. My wife and I are entirely satisfied. Snoring episodes have completely disappeared. This has improved our lives enormously. Leo Fortin, 60, St-Georges, QC ■ Basically you saved my husband's life. For the last 5 years my husband had very bad nights. Bell #23 was nothing short of a miracle. I have my husband back. No more snoring. No more napping during the day. I am telling all our friends. Bonnie Johnson, 64, Wichita, KS ■ My life changed. Sleep now 7-8 hours. I am a retired college professor and author of books. I have no more need to nap during the day. Nothing I tried helped until I started Bell Sound Sleep. I am so delighted with this product I would like to make motivational speeches to help others. Carmen V. Caruso, 66, Ann Arbor, MI On the Bell Website we list phone numbers or email addresses of actual users of this product and all other Bell products. Most are delighted to talk about their relief.
